

Just FAITH Justice WALKING

A Process of Social Engagement and Spiritual Awakening with Young Catholics in High School
15 FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT J-WALKING (JW)

Do you really care? What do you care deeply about? Who do you care for?
How we live these questions out will reveal the focus and depth of our faith. JW begins with these questions.

How long is the process?
J-Walking requires a minimum of three months if groups decide to meet weekly. Otherwise the process can be extended to cover a six-month period and groups meet twice monthly (every-other-week). Every other J-Walking meeting takes place at a social service agency.

How long are the sessions?
There are 12 sessions and each session lasts 2 hours. JW also includes one overnight and one (day-long) retreat, as well as a weekend immersion pilgrimage. The total time commitment, over the course of 3-6 months, is around 50 hours.

Can JW be adjusted for tight schedules and school calendars?
Coordinators are empowered to be flexible and adapt the process to fit the local parish, school or diocesan contexts. JustFaith Ministries' staff members are available to offer guidance throughout the process.

Who is the ideal J-Walker?
This is NOT for everyone! JW forms small community with older teens (11-12th graders) and a few committed adults. J-Walkers are personally invited or nominate themselves for the process. These are people who are asking deep questions, concerned about social realities, and looking to make Gospel choices with their lives.

What is a "good" size for a JW group?
JW is an intensive spiritual process, co-facilitated by younger and older participants. The ideal JW group has between 7-12 people, with at least 5 young people, and no fewer than 2 adults.

What about mature, younger teens?
Motivated young people, who have made a connection with realities of poverty or injustice through study, service or ministry experiences, are excellent JW candidates. It can be appropriate to invite one or two highly-interested younger teens to join a more senior group.

How much will it cost?
The JW registration fee is $250 per group. This covers the comprehensive materials and consultation with staff. All materials are transmitted via attachments to email.

What about additional resources?
J-Walkers read 2 books that combined should cost than $20 per person. Each group will need one video, one resource book and one music CD. Combined, these should cost around $60. JW resources can be purchased at discount through Sowers Books and Videos. J-Walkers should contribute toward these costs.

What does it take to be a Coordinator?
JW Coordinators should be adults (over 21 years) with a passion for justice and profound respect for young people. They also should be people who are trying to live with integrity and deepen their commitment to the Gospel vision of peace with justice.

How does JW fit with youth ministry or Confirmation?
This process is NOT intended to replace, but rather to enhance existing parish formation programs. JW is a specialized, small-group conversion process for interested youth and adults, NOT a large-group (or classroom) formation program.

What about credits and service hours?
JW is an elective process and no one should be required to participate. Schools could offer JW as an elective or an after-school activity. JW focuses on personal transformation rather than self-promotion and participants are dissuaded from accumulating merits.

What about liability and safety issues?
All JW adults are expected to comply with the liability trainings and protocols of their home dioceses.

Does JW connect with the national church and reflect Catholic teachings?
JustFaith Ministries works in partnership with Catholic Campaign for Human Development, Catholic Charities USA and Catholic Relief Services. JW materials are laced with Catholic social wisdom and the process is steeped in "engaged" Catholic spirituality.

How do we find the time when our lives are already so busy?
Reread the first set of questions and listen to the words of Jesus (Mark 8:34-37). We make time for the things we believe in and the people we care about.

JustFAITH JusticeWALKING

A Prophet-Raising Process with Young Catholics in High School

Do you care? How deeply do you care? Who do you care for?

Imagine what might happen if every Catholic parish or diocese across this nation were to raise-up a handful of eager teenage prophets-- anchored in the social teachings of our faith, hungry for Good News and newness of life, and immersed in the spirituality of compassionate justice!

This is the dream of JustFaith Ministries, a national justice formation movement, operative in over eighty dioceses across the nation. In response to repeated calls from the adult graduates of the JustFaith program, JustFaith Ministries has created a process for older adolescents entitled: JusticeWalking, or J-Walking.

J-Walking is an unconventional, 3-6 month journey into “engaged spirituality” with high school-age teenagers (16-18 years). True to its name and reflecting the hallmarks of a “JustFaith” process, this is a counter-cultural and demanding small-group (7-12 people) conversion process. J-Walkers commit to twelve, weekly or bi-weekly sessions, as well as two retreat days, and a weekend justice pilgrimage. Each group “adopts” a local social service agency for the duration of the process, and one meeting each month takes place (on-site) at the agency. The process also includes one public dialogue where J-Walkers offer creative presentations to family members, peers and parishioners.

- ◆ When have your Gospel commitments led you to walk in a different direction?
- ◆ If someone observed the way you live, would they recognize a follower of Jesus?
- ◆ When you look at yourself through the mirror of your peers, do you see a prophet?
- ◆ What kinds of “unlikely friendships” mark us as disciples of Jesus?
- ◆ How does God’s justice inspire you to respond to the global crises of our times?

These are some of the hard questions young J-Walkers wrestle with when they gather to pray, dialogue, and build friendships with people at society’s margins. Like JustFaith, J-Walking is challenging and certainly not for everyone. These are the reflections of one young J-Walker from Connecticut:

“J-Walking was an amazing experience. I have learned things that I could never learn in a classroom. I learned to reflect on the great pains that can be inflicted by (people). It has taught me that the world is my community, to be embraced and treated the way I would wish to be. J-walking has really had a deep impact on me, and reminds me to appreciate and be thankful for what I have. I have also seen a huge growth in my fellow J-walkers, and hopefully myself. We have matured so much as a group from all the experiences we've had. I hope to continue my J-walking...”

God calls us to be prophets when we are young enough to respond wholeheartedly, and J-Walking is an act of faith in the Holy Spirit active in the lives of our young people. God is surely calling young prophets to be Good News in these times, and it will take a supportive community to walk with them. The critical question remains: Who will raise them up and J-Walk with them?
